

Your Local and Regional Newspapers Online

For News That Hits Home ... Start Here

Local and regional newspapers provide the unique coverage and perspectives your library users need. To help you meet that demand, ProQuest now offers online access to 85 full-text local and regional newspaper titles from world-leading news and information provider Gannett Company, Inc.

Add all 85 titles to your collection, or customize it with titles from your region, such as:

The Arizona Republic	Detroit Free Press	The Indianapolis Star
The Burlington Free Press	Fort Collins Coloradoan	Statesman Journal
The Courier-Journal at Louisville	Green Bay Press-Gazette	Tallahassee Democrat
The Des Moines Register	The Honolulu Advertiser	The Tennessean

Ask your ProQuest Representative for a complete list of Gannett titles offered on the award-winning ProQuest platform, or go to <http://www.proquest.com/go/gannett>.

U.S. Military Coverage

ProQuest also offers non-exclusive, full-text access to seven leading U.S. military newspapers to accommodate the information needs of active duty, reserve, and retired military personnel, as well as defense decision-makers and others interested in U.S. military perspectives on current events. Titles include:

- Air Force Times
- Armed Forces Journal
- Army Times
- Defense News
- Federal Times
- Marine Corps Times
- Navy Times

Access to these titles enables library users to retrieve information regarding issues of importance to the military and compare reporting in military newspapers with civilian newspapers.

ProQuest Total News Solutions

Whether your users want to explore daily events of centuries past or need to know what happened minutes ago around the world, ProQuest has the solution.

ProQuest Historical Newspapers™ is the definitive digital archive containing continuous runs of over 30 full-page U.S., international, and black newspapers, with coverage beginning in 1764.

“ProQuest Historical Newspapers helps people see what was happening in society when their parents and grandparents were living, giving them a deeper understanding of their family history.”

—Janice Schultz, Genealogy Librarian, Midwest Genealogy Center, Mid-Continent Public Library

ProQuest Newsstand™ is the online gateway to over 850 current newspapers, including over 575 full-text titles—many with backfiles dating back to the 1980s and 1990s. For maximum flexibility, you can subscribe to all titles or just your local newspaper.

ProQuest Digital Microfilm™ is a solution that remotely hosts an expanding list of local and national microform newspapers for unlimited online viewing and retrieval. With titles such as The New York Times and Washington Post available for online subscriptions, users are able to browse full-image microform newspapers anytime, anywhere, in the library or at any Wi-Fi hotspot.

Dow Jones’s Factiva.com™ contains more than 26,000 information sources that inform researchers about the latest business developments.

Library PressDisplay provides access to over 1,000 of today’s full-image online newspapers from around the world.

“...The database’s breadth, combined with its many customizable options, makes it useful for those researching current events or simply browsing worldwide news. Summing Up: Recommended.”

—S. L. Hupp, Choice, October 2008

Critical Mention iTV is a real-time, web-based broadcast news search engine for finding and viewing video clips from more than 300 television and radio broadcast and cable stations.

FREE TRIAL

To sign up for a free trial or training session for any ProQuest news product, call 800-521-0600, ext. 3344; email pqsales@proquest.com; or visit www.proquest.com.

